

The Harrowing

Alexios has had a busy few months: falling in love, dying, and leading a rebellion in that order. Alexios is a young, orphaned fisherman living in ancient Phoenicia during the time of Christ. He and his love Korinna drown in a storm, and like all souls are sent to the underworld. Separated from Korinna and enslaved in Hell's mines, Alexios sinks into despair, until one day his pain leads him to fight back against his cruel demon captors. Seeing a demon defeated by a human for the first time, the rest of the slaves rally around Alexios as the conflict snowballs into an unintended rebellion. He soon meets Duriel, an angel sent on a covert mission to aid him, who informs Alexios that this struggle is meant by God to distract the devil from the ramifications of Christ's death and salvation for all mankind. If he realized this, the devil might try to stop the Crucifixion rather than encourage it. Faced with this new mandate, the desire to find Korinna, the threat of a growing demon army, and the risk of greater torment, Alexios chooses to lead his people in a direct assault on the devil. When Jesus' path takes him to the cross, the war in Hell culminates in a clash between the great powers in the universe with Alexios caught in between.

From the dishwasher and microwave oven in the kitchen and the clock radio next to your bed, to the cellular phone you hold to your ear—sometimes for hours each day—exposure to EMR is growing and becoming a serious health threat. They dictate the color of our eyes, our complexion and most certainly our susceptibility to develop certain illnesses, among which, Cancer is one that we are most concerned about. Is there a way to determine if we are predisposed and carry a higher risk of developing certain cancers? Can we predict at what age we may develop an illness? And if so, what can, or rather, shall we do about it. Read more...
